Imperial College Healthcare NHS Trust invites applicants to apply for the position of Senior Clinical Fellow in Head and Neck Surgery. The post is based primarily at the Charing Cross Hospital campus in Fulham and will be for a 12-month fixed period commencing in October 2021.

This Royal College of Surgeons of England recognised fellowship is suitable for a Specialist Registrar who holds, or is about to be awarded, a Certificate of Completion of Training (CCT) (or equivalent) in Otolaryngology – Head and Neck Surgery, Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery or Plastic Surgery, and is interested in acquiring further sub-specialist experience before taking up a Consultant post in head and neck oncological surgery. An intercollegiate examination, or equivalent, in the relevant speciality and previous head and neck surgery experience are essential.

Charing Cross Hospital is a major Tertiary Referral Centre for Head and Neck Oncology and Skull Base Surgery and is the National Centre for Adult Airway Reconstruction. This post will allow the successful candidate to further their knowledge and experience in Head and Neck Oncological surgery, benign Head and Neck Surgery and Adult Laryngology. There will be opportunity to develop clinical and operative skills in major complex cancer resection and reconstruction, skull base surgery, transoral robotic surgery (TORS) and endoscopic techniques.

The successful candidate will play an active part in the workload of the department. Sufficient time will be available to carry out some research in head and neck cancer including being involved in ongoing projects at Imperial College. This is an ideal developmental opportunity for someone looking to further their experience and gain sub-specialist skills prior to applying for a Consultant post in Head and Neck surgery.

In addition, there will be an opportunity to participate in the non-resident registrar ENT on-call rota.

The successful applicant will be expected to be fully registered with a Licence to Practise from the General Medical Council.

The successful post holder will receive consultant-led education and supervision and will be supported in their professional development as a Head and Neck surgeon.
