Introduction to Mindfulness by Dr. Melanie St. Hilaire. Moderated by Dr. Eric Meen.

The stress that is inherent in healthcare can lead to negative consequences at both a personal and professional level including depression, anxiety and decreased job satisfaction. Physicians are at increased risk of burnout, which is linked to poorer quality of care, increased medical error, and reduced empathy.

Mindfulness is paying attention to the present, in a particular way, moment by moment and without judgment. Training in mindfulness attempts to increase awareness of thoughts, emotions, and maladaptive ways of responding to stress, to help participants learn to cope with stress in a healthier more skillful way.

Research demonstrates that health care professionals who participated in mindfulness interventions reported decreased stress levels, increased quality of life and self-compassion.

This presentation by Dr. Melanie St. Hilaire will provide an introduction to mindfulness as an approach to self-care. Through formal and informal meditation practices, participants will experience how mindfulness can be cultivated in their daily lives to foster greater self-awareness and wellbeing.

Lunch and Your Future by Design with Mr. W.H. (Bill) Hill Presented by RBC Wealth Management. Moderated by Dr. Gigi Osler

Join us for lunch with Mr. W.H. (Bill) Hill, renowned national retirement planning consultant, and learn how to clarify your vision for the future. When you think about your future, what comes to mind? Maybe you're juggling saving for your children's education, setting money aside for your retirement and trying to pay down debt. Or maybe you're approaching retirement and looking forward to enjoying new activities and the next phase of your life.

His approach to financial planning is called Your Future by Design and begins with the focus on eight Life Cards, which are designed to help you pinpoint the areas of your life that matter most to you. Then, you can create a financial plan around your priorities.

You can create the future you want.

Mr. Hill has 37 years of experience in financial services, having held management and executive positions in banking, investments and retirement planning. After completing the Certified Financial Planning program in 1992, Bill focused his career on investment and retirement planning strategies.

The Journal of Otolaryngology - Head and Neck Surgery

Letter from the Editors – A Benefit of Membership

Dear Fellow CSOHNS Members:

The Journal has been publishing in an open access format for 2 years. Along with an upside of greater exposure and easy access to our papers comes the need for authors to shoulder the cost of publication. This cost comes in the form of an Article Processing Charge (APC) which is paid to the publisher who then has the responsibility to publish it electronically and host it on their website in perpetuity.

Until very recently the APC was the responsibility of the authors or in some cases their Institution, some of whom have relationships with BioMed Central (our publisher). This has proven onerous for many CSOHNS members and that feedback was provided to the Editors and the CSOHNS Executive. Based on this the CSOHNS Council has recently approved a motion to allocate resources to allow us to cover the APC for CSOHNS Members who are in good standing. In order to be eligible for coverage of the APC a CSOHNS member must be the first or senior author on the paper.
